In August, Luther College at the University of Regina lost one of its founding faculty members, Dr. Paul Antrobus. Paul was hired in 1973 as only the third faculty member, and first Psychology professor, of Luther’s University campus. Over the next thirty-two years, Paul engaged and inspired students and colleagues with his larger-than-life personality and devotion to his fellow human being.

An exceptional professor, students were naturally drawn to Paul and his passion for psychology as well as his unique antics such jumping on his mini-trampoline while lecturing, or gliding around Luther on roller skates. Paul loved the small class sizes at Luther because it meant he could really get to know his students. To this day, many of Paul’s students report that he remains one of their favourite teachers because of the huge difference he made in their lives.

Paul cared deeply for his students, for Luther College and for his discipline of psychology. The Honours A Psychology scholarship, valued at $800, is awarded each year to an honours student in psychology who intends to pursue clinical psychology, and, like Paul, is concerned for the psychological and spiritual welfare of others.

Through the generosity of our supporters, we hope to raise $10,000 for the Honours A Psychology scholarship. This would enable Luther to increase the award value from $800 to $1,000 and ensure the sustainability of the scholarship. Please consider making a gift toward the Honours A Psychology Scholarship in memory of our teacher, our friend, Paul Antrobus.

Of course, we appreciate any gift you wish to make to our College if you have a specific need you want to address or just want to support our College through an undesignated gift. To make any gift, simply fill out the donor slip below and mail it back in the envelope provided or visit www.luthercollege.edu/university/makeadonation to use our secure online donation form.

Your gift will also help our College continue providing the highest quality of education in a Christian context where our students are encouraged to “think deeply, act passionately and live faithfully.”

Thank you for your consideration. May the hope of the Christmas season provide blessings to you and yours this December and all of 2016.

Sincerely,

Bryan Hillis, PhD
President, Luther College
